Cacho

a 20-minute dice game for up to eight players

EQUIPMENT:
You will need 5 6-sided dice, and pencil and paper for keeping score.

This game is the traditional version of a well-known dice game whose name begins with "Y".

HOW TO PLAY:
Players take turns throwing the dice up to three times, trying to get one of the hands. If a player decides to throw only once, their roll is called "de mano," and they get an extra 5 points.

There are nine different hands to get. Each player uses a hash mark (many are provided at the right) to record progress toward getting all the hands. 9 scores are recorded.

Down the middle, special-hand scores are recorded there are four special hands:

Escalera: 1,2,3,4,5 or 2,3,4,5,6: 20 points
Un Full: a "full house", two of a kind and three of a different kind: 30 points.
Poker: four of a kind: 40 points
Grande: five of a kind: 50 points. A "Grande de Mano" instantly wins the game.

For each of the six spaces on the sides, try to roll as many of the indicated numbers as you can-- only those add to your score. So for the "ones" space, rolling 3 ones would be 3 points. For the "fives" space, 2 fives would give you 10 points.

WINNING:
Add up the scores after each player has 9 turns-- high score wins.

Ones	Twos	Threes
Escalera 20	Un Full 30	Poker or Grande 40/50
Fours	Fives	Sixes

Neal McDonald 2010; this document is in the public domain. More at gaim.umbc.edu